

I'm a Big Kid Now: The Necessity of Interactive Education for Adults

Vincent "Vince" Randolph has dedicated over 21 years to the fire service. Most recently, Vince serves the community of Zionsville Indiana as the Public Education Officer for the Zionsville Fire Department. In the past 5 years, Vince has enjoyed injecting a new energy for Fire Safety and Community Risk Reduction in the fast-growing town in central Indiana.

Prior to joining the ZFD, Vince spent nearly 20 years with the City of Indianapolis and the Indianapolis Fire Department. While there, Vince managed office operations and educated visitors at Firefighters Survive Alive! Inc. Annually, thousands of youths and adults from across the State of Indiana would receive life-saving education through this state-of-the art interactive fire safety village. Additionally, as an Outreach Educator, Vince frequently presented at various Senior Centers and community events

Vince studied towards a BA in Religious Studies on the Bloomington and Indianapolis campuses of Indiana University. He also holds a Ministerial License from Aeon Bible College.

The joys of his life are his wife, Christine, and their children, 5-year-old Vincent Gregory and 8-month-old Victoria Kathryn.
